

No. 18. General John Brewster

The first John Brewster, who was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, was the first of a family of soldiers. His son, General John Brewster, was a prominent figure in the War of 1812. The photograph shows the house of General John Brewster, who was a prominent figure in the War of 1812. The house is a small, single-story wooden building with a gabled roof. It is surrounded by trees and a fence. The photograph is a black and white print, and the text below it is a transcription of the original caption.

Captain John Brewster (Photographs Fold. 010 Photo 18. 8)

No. 18. Silas Park

The photograph shows the house of Silas Park, who was a prominent figure in the War of 1812. The house is a large, two-story wooden building with a gabled roof. It has a prominent chimney and a porch. The photograph is a black and white print, and the text below it is a transcription of the original caption.

Silas Park (Photographs Fold. 010 Photo 18.7)